

IN THE ABSTRACT

Please delete the current text for the abstract of the disclosure and substitute therefor a new text as follows:

A process for producing a ceramic heater includes forming a resistance heating element on a surface of a ceramic substrate. The resistance heating element is divided into plural sections. Resistivities of the plural sections are measured, respectively. Each of the plural sections is trimmed according to a comparison between the resistivities of the plural sections.